

Meet Hong Kong's youngest entrepreneurs

From making educational videos to building a wearable fitness tracker to developing 'an Uber for food', these bright sparks aren't short of ideas

Reading Time: 3 minutes

Why you can trust SCMP

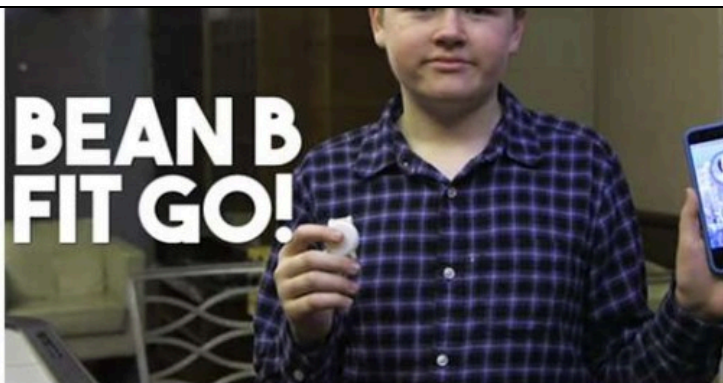

Listen

myNEWS

REACTIVATE ACCESS

Alice Woodhouse

Published: 12:45pm, 6 Apr 2016 | Updated: 5:56pm, 6 Apr 2016

Advertisement

Kamakshi Bhavnani and her business partner Amy Johns take their 18-month-old club for kids seriously, starting with weekly planning meetings on the school bus.

Advertisement

Bhavnani and Johns, both aged 10, started Lil' Explorers in August 2014 as a club for young students to pick up skills using an approach they say is more suited to the way young children learn.

Meet Hong Kong's youngest entrepreneurs

Meet Hong Kong's youngest entrepreneurs

Each week, the two young teachers and a friend develop ideas to teach the 12 children they have under their care for free for an hour and 15 minutes every Wednesday.

Become a subscriber to access this article

Hello Bauhinia, welcome back.
Subscribe today with a special offer.

- ✓ Access to SCMP.com and app
- ✓ Unlock subscriber-only newsletters
- ✓ Listen to articles (web)

1-Year MOST POPULAR

5 USD
/month

3-Month

USD6 per month after 3 months

3 USD
/month

SUBSCRIBE

EXPLORE PLANS

